1 C: Strategic Planning for Diversity

Hannover III

You have attended diversity seminars and you have followed and implemented proper hiring policies and procedures to build a diverse workforce. Yet, what is the best way to incorporate diversity as you plan for the future? To have a cohesive team of employees, it is necessary that the library not only have a strategic plan, but also have diversity as an integral part of the planning process. Achieving diversity is no longer just a goal of strategic planning. Diversity must be pervasive in the six step strategic planning process. In this program attendees will learn that by having diversity at every step in the strategic planning process, the library insures that diversity moves from being just a goal to a fundamental part of library operations.

Speakers: Grace Mills, Law Library Director and Associate Professor of Law, College of Law Library, Florida A&M University
Rhea Ballard-Thrower, Director, Howard University Law Library

2 A: Southern Discomfort: Legal Issues Concerning Air Pollution in the South

Hannover III

The Southern Environmental Law Center reports that over 20 million people across the South live in areas where the air fails to meet federal health standards, with high costs to personal health and the environment. This program will review the law in the South regulating air pollution from both stationary and transportation sources.

Speakers:

Brock Nicholson, Deputy Director, N.C. Division of Air Quality, N.C. Dept. of Environment and Natural Resources
Gudrun Thompson, Associate Attorney, Southern Environmental Law Center, North Carolina

Moderator: Iva M. Futrell, Associate Law Librarian for Research Services, George Mason University Law Library

Coordinator: Christine Ciambella, Access & Research Services Librarian, George Mason University Law Library

2 B: Preparing Students for Law Firm Research

Hannover I

As the practice of law becomes more diverse and less reliant on print resources, are academic libraries truly preparing students for summer or permanent associate positions in large law firms? This program will focus on the ways attorneys are researching (or should be researching) in today's law firm environment, and facilitate practical discussion of how legal research instructors can most effectively get students there.

Speakers:

Mary Rose Strubbe, Professor of Legal Research and Writing, Director of the Legal Research and Writing Program, and
Assistant Director, Institute for Law and the Workplace, Chicago-Kent College of Law
Keith Ann Stiverson, Director of the Law Library; Senior Lecturer, Chicago-Kent College of Law

Moderators:

Melanie Dunshee, Deputy Director of the Law Library and Senior Lecturing Fellow, Duke University School of Law
Douglas Lind, Head of Collection Development and Adjunct Professor of Law, Georgetown Law Library
Coordinator: Helen Mellett Walker, Assistant Librarian, Bradley, Arant, Rose & White LLP, Birmingham, Alabama

2 C: Technical Services for Management – 2010

Hannover II

This presentation is designed to let technical services personnel bring public services and administrative personnel “up to speed” on how the service needs, ideas and strategic plans and programs for the future impact the workflow, training, and needs for technical services. The speakers will report the results of a recent survey that queried technical services librarians and support staff on the big issues facing their departments, processes, training, and staff, and the disconnect that often occurs between the “big ideas” and the detailed and necessary implementation steps to make those ideas a reality.

Speakers:

Janice Anderson, Associate Librarian for Collection Services, Georgetown University Law Library
Rebecca Trammel, Law Library Director and Associate Professor of Law, Stetson College of Law, Law Library & Legal Information Center
Billie Jo Kaufman, Associate Dean for Library and Information Resources, Pence Law Library, American University

3 A: Preservation of Legal Materials Born Digital

Hannover I

Law librarians in academic, private and other law libraries are concerned about losing access to valuable legal information that was created only in digital format. Are efforts underway to collect and preserve as well as provide access to collections of materials that are born digitally? Speakers will discuss the National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program led by the Library of Congress and other national efforts at preserving born digital materials, including those of the AALL, Congress and government agencies such as the Government Printing Office and National Archives and Records Administration. AALL President Claire Germain, a leader among those addressing this issue, will moderate this program.

Speakers:

Martha Anderson, Office of Strategic Initiatives, Library of Congress
Mary Alice Baish, Associate Washington Affairs Representative, American Association of Law Libraries

Moderator: Claire M. Germain, President of the American Association of Law Libraries, Edward Cornell Law Librarian and Professor of Law, Cornell University Law Library

Coordinator: Tim Coggins, Associate Dean for Library & Information Resources & Professor of Law, Univ. of Richmond School of Law Library

3 B: Law Firm Economics –

The Information Spend, Cost Recovery and the Bottom Line

Hannover III

Enhance your understanding of the business and profit aspects of law firm management. By attending this seminar you will learn

- What primary factors impact law firm profitability and how is it measured?
- How can recovery of information expenses impact the financial well being of a firm?
- How managing cost recovery can enhance the librarian’s role at the firm?
- What strategies and tactics have worked?
- How to collaborate with colleagues to positively impact your firm’s bottom line?

- Learn about technology that can help you maximize your cost recovery success

Speaker: Blythe McCoy, J.D., Librarian Relations Manager, Thomson-West

Moderator and Coordinator: Helen Mellett Walker, Assistant Librarian, Bradley, Arant, Rose & White LLP, Birmingham, Alabama

3 C: Service to the Public in the Internet Age

Hannover II

We've all heard it a thousand times - "Now that we have Google, why do we need all these books?" Savvy librarians know that we are a long way from the reality of a complete virtual library. In addition to deciding the fee vs. free vs. print question for our lawyers, judges, faculty and law students, we also must consider how this question affects the lay person. This program will discuss how the general public uses law libraries and the Internet for legal information. It will address how much information is on the web, the specific limitations of that information, and the problems of reliance on just that information. The speakers will discuss how the popular misconception that "everything on the web" has led to loss of funding, particularly of Florida court law libraries. We will explore the appropriate balance among free web sources, proprietary fee-based databases, and print materials in order to meet the needs of all of our patrons.

Speakers:

Merrill Chertok, Law Librarian, Alexandria Law Library, Alexandria, Virginia

Jean Holcomb, formerly of King County Law Library in Seattle, Washington and The University of Alabama Law Library

Mary McCormick, Head of Public Services, Florida State University College of Law Library

Moderator and Coordinator: Christine Ciambella, Access & Research Services Librarian, George Mason Univ. Law Library

4 A: Retrieval That Works:
FRBR (Functional Requirements for Bibliographic Records) and OCLC Hannover III

The International Federal of Library Associations (IFLA) Functional Requirements for Bibliographic Records (FRBR) model offers a revolutionary new framework for presenting library catalog information. FRBR-inspired OPACs can provide significantly more user-friendly, work-based, clustered displays of search results. This session will provide an overview of FRBR and explain its potential value for next generation library technical services work and public service offerings.

Speaker: Eric Childress, Consulting Project Manager, OCLC Research, Dublin, Ohio

Moderator : Sally Wambold, Technical Services Librarian, University of Richmond School of Law Library
Coordinator: Tim Coggins, Associate Dean for Library & Information Resources & Professor of Law, Univ. of Richmond School of Law Library

4 B: Chat and Virtual Reference in the Law Library Hannover I

How are law libraries handling the changes ushered in by offering chat and virtual reference services? Megan Garton's portion of the program will cover chat reference topics and reference services at the University of North Carolina. Emily Carr will discuss virtual reference issues, including virtual reference at the Law Library of Congress.

Speakers:
Megan Garton, Reference/Electronic Resources Librarian, Kathrine R. Everett Law Library, Univ. of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Emily Carr, Legal Reference Specialist, Law Library of Congress

Moderator and Coordinator: Miriam Childs, Serials/Preservation Librarian, Law Library of Louisiana

4 C: Spyware for the Non-Geek Hannover II

Spyware (also known as Adware and Malware) is programming installed on a computer to secretly gather information. Frequently these programs are scripts or cookies installed surreptitiously when a person downloads free programs. Spyware can gather information about a user's Internet and computer use which is then sold to advertisers and vendors. In addition to the obvious invasion of privacy, spyware can significantly decrease computer performance and cause browser problems. Learn what Spyware is, how to protect your computer against it, and some of the ways to clean it off of your computer after becoming infected. We will also look at some of the free programs available on the Internet to protect against and remove Spyware.

Speaker: Steve Melamut, Information Technology Services Librarian and Assistant Clinical Professor of Law, Kathrine R. Everett Law Library, Univ. of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

5 A: Reinventing Your Library Through Marketing

Hannover III

This program provides a practical approach to the components and aspects of creating an effective marketing plan for law librarians. Learn how to position and market the law librarian's skills, staff and collection effectively. Learn best practices and practical examples on how to impact and influence your patrons by market segmentation and planning. Learn to segment your market for better awareness of library services, brainstorm creative ideas to market the librarians more effectively, and tips and tricks to create an effective marketing plan.

Speaker: Blythe McCoy, Librarian Relations Manager, Thomson – West

Moderator and Coordinator: Mary Jane Slipsky, Law Librarian, Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP, Raleigh, North Carolina

5 B: Using Technology to Add Research Instruction to Law Courses

Hannover II

How can we reach out to law students after they complete their structured legal research and writing courses? Adding research and library information to substantive law courses can extend legal research training beyond the library and first-year compulsory courses. This program presents a variety of ways that technology aids integration of research with the substantive law school experience. Tools such as Blackboard, interactive web lessons, and course specific research guides are explored. A survey of members allows the program to include ideas from a variety of institutions. Benefits of such efforts, including increased contact with faculty, will also be discussed.

Speakers:

Joy Hanson, Reference Librarian, Duke Law Library

Wayne Miller, Director of Educational Technologies, Duke Law School

Katherine Topulos, Foreign & International Law Librarian, Duke Law Library

Moderator: Joy Hanson, Reference Librarian, Duke Law Library
