

Instruction: Sometimes the hardest part is just getting started. PCL librarians are here to help you get to know the library and what's in it, and keep you afloat with online research guides, formal research instruction, and even one-on-one consultations; and help you polish your seminar papers off with citation assistance. The library is always looking for ways to help students, so be sure to tell your librarian what other instruction would be helpful for you.

Discovering:

Library staff members work every day to keep your sources to the law current, and to ensure that everything is organized and in order so that you can find what you need when you need it. If you ever have trouble locating something, ask the library staff at any point for help finding something.

Explore. Discover. Learn.

Community: The library is a second home to law students and we try to make the environment as welcoming as possible. Have an idea? Stop by and share it with us! Be on the lookout for special events, displays, or other community events in or sponsored by the library. You can also find out about library events and happenings by following the PCL on Facebook and Twitter.

Scholarship: PCL reference librarians not only have an M.L.S degree, they also have a J.D., and are here to navigate you through the many facets in the world of legal research and writing. By staying current on the latest legal and research issues, librarians can guide you to the most relevant and useful information for your academic work, as well as scholarship for seminar courses and law review—whether the information you need is located in the PCL or not. Ask a librarian how!

Helping Out:

Having trouble finding a resource, using the library database, or just getting tangled with technology? Stop by the library- we'll do what we can to help. If we don't have the answer, we'll point you in the right direction.

Access: The library has a wealth of resources to help you succeed including books, journals, movies, CDs, government documents, as well as access to numerous databases and electronic resources. We even lend laptops! As a law student you'll enjoy 24 hour access to the library itself, and to most of its resources. With over 200 study carrels and various comfy seating spread over four floors, you'll be sure to find a comfortable spot to work, even if you're pulling an all-nighter.

WAKE FOREST
UNIVERSITY
Professional Center Library

