AALL LISP Public Library Toolkit: North Carolina
Michelle Modic, Duke University Goodson Law Library

I. State Constitution

The current North Carolina Constitution (of 1971) is available in print in volume 19 of the General Statutes of North Carolina Annotated (as published by LexisNexis and described in Part II below). The constitution may also be found in volume 48 of West’s North Carolina General Statutes Annotated.

The North Carolina Constitution is available online at http://www.ncga.state nc.us/legislation/constitution/ncconstitution.html from the North Carolina General Assembly.

II. State Statutes

A. State Session Laws

In North Carolina, the enrolled, ratified, and approved bills are assigned a session law number. These numbered bills are then published in sequential order in the Session Laws of North Carolina by the Legislative Services Commission. This publication contains all laws and joint resolutions from each regular and extra session of the General Assembly.

The session laws may be found online at the North Carolina General Assembly’s web site, beginning with the 1981-1982 session for Public Laws, and the 1959-1960 session for Local Laws, at http://www.ncga.state nc.us/gascripts/EnactedLegislation/ELTOC.pl?sType=Law.

B. State Statutory Codes

1. Unannoted Codes (statutory text only)
   a. The North Carolina General Statutes may be found online at the General Assembly’s Web page at http://www.ncga.state nc.us/gascripts/statutes/Statutes.asp.

2. Annotated Statutory Codes (statutory text in addition to related research materials such as cases and law review articles)
   a. LexisNexis publishes the official General Statutes of North Carolina, Annotated.
   b. West publishes an unofficial version of the statutes called West’s North Carolina General Statutes Annotated.

III. State Bills

Full-text bill search from the North Carolina General Assembly (beginning with 1989 special session) – http://www.ncga.state nc.us/gascripts/BillSearch/BillSearch.asp

Bill retrieval by bill number from the North Carolina General Assembly web site (beginning with the 1985-1986 session) – http://www.ncga.state nc.us/gascripts/BillLookUp/BillLookUp.pl

IV. State Administrative Law

A. State Register: The North Carolina Register

The North Carolina Register is a bimonthly publication of temporary, proposed, permanent and emergency rules. The Register also contains executive orders of the Governor.

The Register is available online from the North Carolina Office of Administrative Hearings at http://www.oah.state.nc.us/rules/register/. Online access is available for all volumes.

B. State Administrative Code: The North Carolina Administrative Code (NCAC)

The NCAC is available online from the North Carolina Office of Administrative Hearings at http://reports.oah.state.nc.us/ncac.asp.

The NCAC is available in print from ThomsonReuters (West).

C. State Administrative Decisions

Hearings from various state agencies may be found online from the North Carolina Office of Administrative hearings at http://www.ncoah.com/hearings/decisions/.

Since 1998, administrative decisions have been published as separate volumes of the NCAC. They are also included in the monthly updates to the NCAC.

V. County/Municipal/City Codes

Municipal codes of many North Carolina cities and counties are available online from the Municipal Code Corporation at http://municode.com/.

VI. State Jury Instructions

Electronic access to these jury instructions is only available through the Fastcase legal research system. Fastcase is available to members of the North Carolina Bar.
VII. State Forms

A. Official State Forms

B. North Carolina Form Books

1. Douglas’ Forms is a loose-leaf set containing hundreds of basic forms intended to serve as models or drafting guides. It also contains the official forms published by the North Carolina Administrative office of the Courts. Douglas’ Forms is also available on LexisNexis.

VIII. State Legal Encyclopedia

Strong’s is kept up to date by pocket parts, revised volumes, and cumulative update service.

Strong’s is also available online through Westlaw.

IX. North Carolina Case Law

North Carolina publishes case law from appellate courts (i.e. the North Carolina Court of Appeals and the North Carolina Supreme Court). North Carolina does not have a trial-level case reporter.

A. North Carolina Supreme Court

1. Print

a. North Carolina Reports – Official case reporter published by the state
b. South Eastern Reporter – Unofficial case reporter that contains case law from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, and West Virginia.

B. North Carolina Court of Appeals

1. Print

a. North Carolina Court of Appeals Reports – Official case reporter published by the state
b. South Eastern Reporter – Unofficial case reporter that contains case law from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, and West Virginia.

C. North Carolina Business Courts

Select decisions back to 1996 may be found online at http://www.ncbusinesscourt.net/New/opinions/.

D. Federal Case Law

Federal case law is published according to level of court. Federal district court cases are published in West’s Federal Supplement (currently in its second series, F. Supp. 2d). Federal appellate cases are published in West’s Federal Reporter (currently in its third series, F.3d).

X. State Digests

North Carolina case law can be researched in two different West digests.

A. West’s North Carolina Digest 2d (includes North Carolina and federal (arising out of North Carolina federal courts) case law)

B. West’s South Eastern Digest 2d (includes North Carolina and other states, but no federal case law).

XI. North Carolina Records and Briefs

Records and Briefs for the North Carolina Supreme Court and Court of Appeals may be found via the Electronic Filing Site and Document library at http://www.ncappellatecourts.org/nc_main_1.nsf. Coverage includes selected records on appeal, briefs, and motions from 1979 to current.

Print copies of Supreme Court and Court of Appeals records and briefs are available from some of the state’s law school libraries (with varying degrees of coverage in print and/or microform), including the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Wake Forest University, Duke University, North Carolina Central and Campbell University.

<td>Supreme Court</td>
<td>The Supreme Court of North Carolina is the state's highest court, and there is no further appeal in the state from their decisions. This court has a chief justice and six associate justices who sit together as a panel in Raleigh. The Supreme Court has no jury, and it makes no determination of fact; rather, it considers error in legal procedures or in judicial interpretation of the law.</td>

Supreme Court Opinions (from 1998)
| Court of Appeals | The Court of Appeals is North Carolina’s only intermediate appellate court. Fifteen judges sit in rotating panels of three, deciding only questions of law on every case appealed from the Superior and District courts except death penalty cases. Appeals can range from a parking ticket case to murder case. In fiscal year 2003-2004, more than 1,750 cases were filed with the Court of Appeals. Cases in which there is a dissent in the Court of Appeals go to the Supreme Court as well as to those that the Supreme Court accepts for review through petition. Court of Appeals judges serve eight-year terms. |
| Superior Court | All felony criminal cases, civil cases involving more than $10,000 and misdemeanor and infraction appeals from District Court are tried in Superior Court. A jury of 12 hears the criminal cases. In the civil cases, juries are often waived. |
| District Court | Trial Courts, or District Courts, can be divided into four categories, civil, criminal, juvenile and magistrate. Like the Superior Court, District Court sits in the county seat of each county. It may also sit in certain other cities and towns, specifically authorized by the General Assembly. Civil cases such as divorce, custody, child support and cases involving less than $10,000 are heard in District Court, along with criminal cases involving misdemeanors and infractions. The trial of a criminal case in District Court is always without a jury. The District Court also hears juvenile cases involving children under the age of 16 who are delinquent and children under the age of 18 who are undisciplined, dependent, neglected or abused. Magistrates accept guilty pleas for minor misdemeanors, accept guilty pleas for traffic violations and accept waivers of trial for worthless-check cases among other things. In civil cases, the magistrate is authorized to try small claims involving up to $5,000 including landlord eviction cases. |
| Business Court | The North Carolina Business Court is a specialized forum of the North Carolina State Courts’ trial division. Cases involving complex and significant issues of corporate and commercial law in our state are assigned by the Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court to a special superior court judge who oversees resolution of all matters in the case through trial.

The North Carolina Business Court sits in Greensboro, Raleigh, and Charlotte.

North Carolina Business Court Rules

Opinions of the North Carolina Business Court |

| Family Court | Family Court was established in 1999 to create a "forum that resolves family related issues in a manner that respects the rights of each individual family member, promotes the best interest of the family and helps families structure their own solutions." Since that time, family courts have become essential to the way district courts resolve domestic and juvenile legal issues. In collaboration with the court community, family court judges and family court staff endeavor to efficiently process each case toward resolution by applying best practices in case management principles, such as assignment of one judge to one family for all issues before the court, continuous calendaring and limiting continuances. As a result, family courts are able to offer families more timely, consistent and thoughtful outcomes to their legal issues.

| Drug Treatment Court | The North Carolina Drug Treatment Courts (DTC) were established by statute in 1995 to enhance and monitor the delivery of treatment services to chemically dependent adult offenders while holding those offenders rigorously accountable for complying with their court ordered treatment plans. In 2001, the General Assembly formally authorized expansion of the DTCs to include substance abusing juvenile offenders and chemically dependent parents of neglected or abused children. The overall goal of the DTC is to significantly break the cycle of addiction that gives rise to repeated law-breaking episodes. By enhancing the likelihood that the drug-driven | offender will remain drug and crime free and socially responsible, the DTC seeks to reduce justice system, health system, and other societal costs associated with continuing drug use and criminal involvement.

In 2003, the General Assembly defined Drug Treatment Courts as an Intermediate Sanction under the Structured Sentencing law. Intermediate-level offenders sentenced to Drug Treatment Court are required, as a condition of probation, to comply with program rules, report as required, and to participate in court supervision, drug screening or testing, and drug or alcohol treatment programs.

<tr>
<td>Small claims court is part of the District Court Division. It handles civil cases where a plaintiff requests assignment to a magistrate and the amount in controversy is $5,000 or less. The principal relief sought in small claims court is money, the recovery of specific personal property, or summary ejectment (eviction). A magistrate presides over small claims court. There is no jury and usually no lawyers. A person who loses in small claims court may appeal for a trial by jury before a judge in District Court.</td>
