

Collaborative Relationships Between Law Librarians and Legal Writing Faculty

By Ingrid Mattson & Susan Azyndar. Second Draft, Fall 2017, at 8.

Article Categories: Legal Research Instruction for 1Ls; Working with External Stakeholders

Keywords: Collaboration; Law Schools; Legal Research Instruction; Legal Writing

Reviewer's Summary:

Mattson and Azyndar offer several suggestions on how law librarians can communicate and collaborate effectively with legal writing faculty. First, they describe how they are in a unique situation because at the Moritz College of Law at The Ohio State University, first-year legal writing classes can be taught by either law librarians or legal writing faculty. After describing the traditional differences between law librarians and legal writing faculty, the authors suggest strategies such as considering how the two disciplines interplay, being specific when discussing learning outcomes and guest lecture content, and reading the major scholarly journals or attending conferences from the opposite profession.

Summarized by: Savanna Nolan, Georgetown University Law Center, in 2020.