

Pro Se Litigants in the Legal System: A Selective Bibliography, 2000-2007
Updated 2008 by Theresa Strike
Services to Pro Se Patrons & Prisoners: LISP/SCCL/SR-SIS Joint Roundtable AALL 2008
Monday, Jul 14, 2008 12:00 pm – 1:15 pm

---

Paris R. Baldacci, A Full and Fair Hearing: The Role of the ALJ in Assisting the Pro Se Litigant, 27 J. Nat'l Ass'n Admin. L. Judiciary 447 (2007).

Steven K. Berenson, A Family Law Residency Program?: A Modest Proposal in Response to the Burdens Created by Self-Represented Litigants in Family Court, 33 Rutgers L.J. 105 (2001).

Lois Bloom & Helen Hershkoff, Federal Courts, Magistrate Judges, and the Pro Se Plaintiff, 16 Notre Dame J.L. Ethics & Pub. Policy 475 (2002).

Tiffany Buxton, Student Author, Foreign Solutions to the U.S. Pro Se Phenomenon, 34 Case W. Res. J. Intl. L. 103 (2002).

Terry Carter, Self-Help Speeds Up: While Courts Work To Become More Friendly to Pro Se Litigants, the Justice System Struggles to Address Difficult Issues Raised by Their Presence, 87 ABA J. 34 (July 2001).

Jessica Case, Student Author, Pro Se Litigants at the Summary Judgment Stage: Is Ignorance of the Law an Excuse?, 90 Ky. L.J. 701 (2001/2002).

Deborah J. Chase, Pro Se Justice and Unified Family Courts, 37 Fam. L.Q. 403(2003).

Charles R. Dyer, The Queen of Chula Vista: Stories of Self-Represented Litigants and a Call for Using Cognitive Linguistics to Work With Them, 99 Law Libr. J. 717 (2007).

Alicia M. Farley, Student author, An Important Piece of the Bundle: How Limited Appearances Can Provide an Ethically Sound Way to Increase Access to Justice for Pro Se Litigants, 20 Geo. J. Legal Ethics 563 (2007).

Kerry Fitz-Gerald, Serving Pro Se Patrons: An Obligation and an Opportunity, 22 No.2/3 Leg. Ref. Servs. Q. 41(2003).

Margaret B Flaherty, Student Author, How Courts Help You Help Yourself: The Internet and the Pro Se Litigant, 40 Fam. Ct. Rev. 91 (2002).

Jona Goldschmidt, The Pro Se Litigant's Struggle for Access to Justice: Meeting the Challenge of Bench and Bar Resistance. 40 Fam. Ct. Rev. 36 (2002).

Cynthia Gray, Reaching out or overreaching: judicial ethics and self-represented litigants, 27 J. Nat'l Ass'n Admin. L. Judiciary 97(2007).

John M. Greacen , Self-represented litigants: learning from ten years of experience in family courts, 44 No. 1 Judges' J. 24 (2005).

Paula L. Hannaford-Agor, Helping the Pro Se Litigant: A Changing Landscape, 39 Ct. Rev. 8 (2003).

Paula Hannaford-Agor & Nicole Mott, Research on Self-Represented Litigants: Preliminary Results and Methodological Considerations, 24 Just. Sys. J. 163 (2003).

Amy C. Henderson, Student Author, Meaningful Access to the Courts?: Assessing Self-Represented Litigants' Ability to Obtain a Fair Divorce in Missouri's Court system, 72 UMKC L. Rev. 571 (2003).

Edward M. Holt, Student Author, How to Treat "Fools": Exploring the Duties Owed to Pro Se Litigants in Civil Cases, 25 J. Leg. Prof. 167 (2001).

Candice K. Lee, Student Author, Access Denied: Limitations on Pro Se Litigants' Access to the Courts in the Eighth Circuit, 36 U. Cal. Davis L. Rev. 1261 (2003).

Deborah L. Neveils, Student Author, Florida's Vexatious Litigant Law: An End to the Pro Se Litigant's Courtroom Capers?, 25 Nova L. Rev. 343 (2000).

Pro Se Debtors: Problems and Proposed Recommendations for Addressing the Needs of Unrepresented Debtors, 27 Cal. Bankr. J. 169 (2004).

Tina L. Rasnow, Traveling Justice: Providing Court Based Pro Se Assistance to Limited Access Communities, 29 Fordham Urb. L.J. 1281 (2002).

Larry Richmond, The Pro Se Patron: An Ethical Rather than Legal Dilemma, 22 No. 2/3 Leg. Ref. Servs. Q. 75 (2003).

Jonathan D. Rosenbloom, Exploring Methods to Improve Management and Fairness in Pro Se Cases: a Study of the Pro Se Docket in the Southern District of New York, 30 Fordham Urb. L. J. 305 (2002).

Hailey L. Scoville, Student Author, & Richard Bales, Pro Se Litigants and Summary Judgment, 214 F.R.D. 231 (2003).

Beverly W. Shukals, and Glen H. Sturtevant Jr. Pro Se Litigation: Best Practices From a Judge's Perspective, 42 U. Rich. L. Rev. 93 (2007).

Lee Sims, Academic Law Library Web Sites: A Source of Service to the Pro Se User, 23 No. 4 Leg. Ref. Servs. Q. 1.

Ronald W. Staudt & Paula L. Hannaford, Technology And Legal Practice Symposium Issue: Access to Justice for the Self-Represented Litigant: an Interdisciplinary Investigation by

Designers and Lawyers, 52 Syracuse L. Rev. 1017 (2002)

Ronald W. Staudt, Technology for Justice Customers: Bridging the Digital Divide Facing Self-Represented Litigants, 5 U. Md. L.J. Race, Religion, Gender & Class 71 (2005).

Drew A. Swank. The pro se phenomenon, 19 BYU J. Pub. L. 373 (2005).

Drew A. Swank, In defense of rules and roles: the need to curb extreme forms of pro se assistance and accommodation in litigation, 54 Am. U. L. Rev. 1537 (2005).

Margaret Graham Tebo, Self-Serve Legal Aid: As Nonlawyer Services Grow, Some Pro Se Litigants Are Succeeding. Others Are Just Getting More Disillusioned With the Justice System, 88 ABA J. 38 (August 2002).

Nina Ingwer Vanwormer. Help at your fingertips: a twenty-first century response to the pro se phenomenon, 60 Vand. L. Rev. 983(2007).