Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare from Thomson Reuters Capture 2019 AALL New Product Award

CHICAGO – May 14, 2019 –The American Association of Law Libraries (AALL) has named Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare on Westlaw Edge as its 2019 New Product Award winner. Released in 2018 as a way to interpret statutes and federal regulations faster, Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare on Westlaw Edge are products of Thomson Reuters.

Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare on Westlaw Edge allow users to streamline legal research with the ability to instantly see the most recent changes to a statute or federal regulation—and compare any two versions.

“AALL congratulates Thomson Reuters on being honored with the 2019 New Product Award for Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare on Westlaw Edge,” said AALL President Femi Cadmus. “In an era of exponential information and massive data, legal information professionals who provide deep research support continue to value advanced technology tools and resources that streamline the research process without compromising comprehensiveness and accuracy.”

“It is an honor for Thomson Reuters to again receive the AALL New Product Award, this time for Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare on Westlaw Edge,” said Becky Aanning, head of Codes Compare Development for Westlaw Edge. “Our customers have emphasized that they value the ease of use and time-savings that our Statutes Compare and Regulations Compare tools provide, as well as the features within Westlaw Edge that employ state-of-the-art artificial intelligence and machine learning, such as WestSearch Plus and Litigation Analytics.”

AALL’s New Product Award honors new commercial information products that enhance or improve existing law library services or procedures—or products that improve access to legal information, the legal research process, or procedures for the technical processing of library materials.

Eligible new products may include computer hardware and/or software; educational or bibliographic material; or other products and devices that aid or improve library workflow, research, or intellectual access. New products are considered to be those in the library-related marketplace for two years or less. Products that have been reintroduced in a new format or with substantial changes are also eligible.

Thomson Reuters will be recognized for the honor at the upcoming 112th AALL Annual Meeting & Conference, to be held in Washington, DC, from July 13-16, 2019.
