Deep breathing should come naturally to us all--so why does your watch keep telling you you're not doing it enough? Too often, we get stuck in a cyclical state of stress and shallow breathing that can have a cascading effect on our health and wellness. For the first virtual coffee chat of 2021, we're going back to the basics--way back. Dr. Laura Sangeeta Biagi, an accomplished educator, healer, and storyteller, will lead you through the fundamentals of deep breathing and introduce practices to help you start your new year with more mindfulness and less tension.

MAXIMIZING THE INDEX TO FOREIGN LEGAL PERIODICALS (IFLP) IN ALL LAW LIBRARIES

As the world becomes even more interconnected, how do librarians keep up with the growing international and comparative legal information needs of today's increasingly transnational and multilingual legal professionals and law students? The Index to Foreign Legal Periodicals (IFLP), one of AALL's premier publications, can help meet the never-ending need for accurate and diverse information from around the globe. During this webinar, learn how to search IFLP effectively, how to utilize the Index when teaching and training others, and how to better understand IFLP's potential as a low-cost/high-impact resource for your legal research toolkit. This webinar will be moderated by Kevin Durkin-Ortiz, IFLP managing editor at UC Berkeley. Speakers include Charles Bjork, international and foreign law reference librarian at Georgetown University Law Library, Marci Hoffman, associate law library director and foreign and international law librarian at Berkeley Law, and Kristen Rowlett, international law librarian at Texas A&M University School of Law.

Whether you're looking for a new job, applying for leadership positions, scholarships, awards, or grants, or supporting others in those efforts, writing persuasive letters is unavoidable for law librarians. How can you make your writing stand out and make the best case? In this month's "So You Wanna...?" series, Savanna Nolan will sit down to discuss recommendation letters and personal statements with recent AALL Awards Committee Chair, Cathy Lemann. What makes a winning letter? What are some common pitfalls? Is there a way we can make the process as pain-free as possible? This series is brought to you by the Professional Engagement, Growth & Advancement SIS and the AALL Continuing Professional Education Committee.

GRIT AND GROWTH MINDSET: TOOLS FOR SUCCESS IN YOUR CAREER

Does the prospect of a long winter indoors have you questioning your resolve to keep working toward your goals? Learn about developing a growth mindset so that you can continue to focus on the objectives that are important to you. David Zopfi-Jordan and Sarah Rohne teach us that grit and mindset are traits we can learn and leverage in pursuing our career goals. They delve into the science behind these traits, give us assessment tools, and teach us how to use these methods, both for our individual career goals and our wider work environments.

Find this and many more continuing education programs and webinars on AALL eLearning.

FOR THE LEADER IN YOU

Each month the Leadership Development Committee will highlight a librarian leader and ask them a few questions about their leadership journey.

LEADER PROFILE

Susan Nevelow Mart
Professor and Director of the Law Library
University of Colorado Law School
William A. Wise Law Library

What does leadership mean to you?

It means having a vision for the law library. There is internal and external leadership. The external vision for me is being part of the scholarly discussion about issues important to our profession.

Internally, it means enabling others to succeed in their areas of expertise. I think everyone who is a professional librarian has things that they are passionate about. We're not a profession without scholarship, but not everyone wants or needs to contribute as a scholar. But everyone can contribute in some way by being on committees, by being on task forces, by getting involved in AALL, and by presenting on topics. All of these things are elements of outreach for our profession that are important.

As an example of leadership, I started the "Boulder Conference on Legal Information: Scholarship and Teaching," because there was no place for librarians to meet with people who had the scholarly background to help them. Librarians are generally very curious and broadly-educated people. Encouraging that curiosity is really a wonderful thing.

How do you help others develop their leadership skills?

I try to be a mentor in my own library. That can be hard to implement in the flat hierarchical structure that exists in so many libraries. So to me, being involved in professional development opportunities is really important to develop leadership--that means working on committees. There are law school committees and university-level committees. There is AALL. If you are curious and involved, you will become a chair of a committee, and you will get training in leadership skills. I have also mentored through AALL, offering encouragement in the same way.

What is one thing you've read about leadership that stuck with you? Why? Is there a particular AALL product/program/article that was especially helpful for you as you developed as a leader?

There was not one thing. What I did when I became a librarian was to delve into library literature. I started reading about teaching and about working in libraries. I read everything that I could get my hands on. For me, reading the existing literature was about getting up to speed on where my profession was when I entered it. Also critical for me was attending AALL and going to lots of programs about how libraries work. It was about learning about management and leadership, including the political aspects of being the librarian. It's kind of like being a lawyer--you enter the profession at a certain point in history, and you need to figure out what that history is so you can figure out how to shape it and move forward.

What is the best advice regarding leadership or being successful in your work that you've ever received?

Be kind! I don't think I started by being very kind. I had been a trial lawyer. There was a transition for me, which many people helped me with--from being adversarial to being thoughtful in my scholarship and kinder in my interactions with people.

Do you know a great leader? Recommend a leader for us to spotlight in the Leader In You column. Send your recommendation with a brief description of why you think they are a great leader to Kris Niedringhaus, Chair, Leadership Development Committee.
